

You know to that to live at ground level is to live in unfathomable poverty. But you are literally above all that, enjoying a life of high rises and skyscrapers. Your position in society stems from your job in the marketing & advertising department of Harper Mills where you work with a great team of people. You are lucky. You know it and you love it.

1. Have you always been among the upper class? Or did you crawl your way out of some dark squalor to be where you are today?

2. Look to the character on your left. What is something you really like about that person?

3. There is someone in the office who really annoys you. Who are they and what did they do?

4. What do you imagine is written on your employee record?

5. What is your name?

6. Once the player on your left has decided on a name, put that name next to question 2 so you remember your friends name.
